The Porsche Among Kitchen Scales

The measure of all things. If you want to cook like a pro, you need a professional's equipment. Siemens' MW 91100 kitchen scales are extremely precise and ideal for adding up weight: in order to weigh several ingredients individually, the scales can always be reset via the "Tara" function. The dynamic look of this wall-mounted miracle of precision was created by Porsche Design. And the three numbers "911" in this 'red dot award' winner's name shows that what we're dealing with here is truly one of the raciest kitchen aids around.

KENWOOD TOASTER

Subtle Slices

It seems very likely that this ingenious machine was designed by a sleepyhead, someone who is physically affected by the glare of the morning sun and by the sound of bread popping out of a toaster. In this 2-slice toaster, the slices are automatically and softly lowered and lifted as if hydraulically controlled, thanks to the soft lift (a kind of lever) function. A further advantage as far as ease of use is concerned: the detachable bun warming rack on the stylish stainless steel toaster doubles as a toast rack for your breakfast table.

Beauty & the Beast

This here beauty is as sharp as a razor. With 150 Watts and a titanium-coated special blade, the Navis N1 cutting machine commands the respect of both users and beholders, all of whom will be relieved to know that, thanks to the safety-catch, the knife can easily be replaced. Phew! Rather ingenious: the cantilevered motor makes it possible to catch the cut objects directly under the knife and to put them down as required. A funny detail: the Navis N1 already had a red dot even before it received the 'red dot award' for design – see if you can spot it in the picture.

Help For Cookie Monsters

All those unable to open a box of cookies without spilling them on their beds and regularly leaving trails of crumbs behind them à la Hansl & Gretl are sincerely advised to buy the ErgoRapido Cyclonic 2 in 1 immediately. No cables, no dust bags – clearly, this is the ideal tool to clean up every mess in our wake quickly and effortlessly. Easily turned from a stick cleaner into a handheld for work surfaces and stairs; mobile as can be. And its timeless and aesthetically pleasing look was even awarded the prestigious 'red dot award' for design. What more can one ask for?
